

Diego Massimiliano De Giorgi

Diego Massimiliano De Giorgi is an expert in public affairs, strategic management, and economic diplomacy. He is the Head of the House of Giorgi, one of Europe's oldest families, and actively manages its assets. Diego Massimiliano received military and diplomatic training in Europe and the United States. He studied law and economics at the universities of Helsinki, Pisa, Rome, and Paris under Martti Koskenniemi, Sabino Cassese, and Mireille Delmas-Marty. He was also a visiting research student at the University of Oxford, St. John's College under Paul Craig and a visiting international student at Yale Law School under Susan Rose-Ackerman and Daniel Esty.

Diego Massimiliano managed strategic consulting engagements and complex transactions for public and private companies, financial institutions, and governments providing business intelligence, institutional relations, and political risk analysis. He served as an advisor to nonprofit establishments, international organisations, and nongovernmental entities. Diego Massimiliano has also been active in the cultural heritage sector as a professional and philanthropist furthering conservation and restoration initiatives.